*Boxes north of river.

*Boxes north of river.

Fire slarms are sounded upon the tower bell at department headquarters by striking the number of the signal station nearest the fire, in this manner: If for box 4, four distinct strokes and repeated; if for box 13, one stroke, a short pause, then three strokes, and repeated, thus, I-III, I-III, etc. "22" is sounded for all fires within the district bounded by Fifth, Ninth, Jackson and Quincy streets.

TEN STROKES, and repeated, followed by the number of the signal station nearest the fire, is the SECOND ALARM—for a serious fire.

THEER STROKES, followed by TWELVE, and repeated, is the GENERAL ALARM for a very dangerous fire, and calls out the entire department with a detail of police.

TWO STROKES, slowly, indicates FIRE IS OUT. One long whistle from water works, for fires south of river. Three whistles from same, for fires north of river.

RAINFALL IN KANSAS. Last Night's Rains Were Heavy Over the members and their families.

State. The rains of last night were general over Kansas. There was a heavy rainfall over the Rock Island's southwestern division and good rains on the eastern division. The dry country between Liberal and Pratt received another good soaking and wheat is looking as well there as in any part of the state. At Jewell City there was a heavy wind storm during the night and several houses were unroofed, but no one was hurt, and though it hailed there was no damage to crops.

The Santa Fe country southwest also caught good rains. The Kansas crops have seldom been in better condition at this time of year than they are today.

The drawing elements of the two factions will be watched with interest. The arrangements for the Saturday night

SOME ANECDOTES.

Showing the Eccentricities of Prominent Individualities.

Men of great learning may fairly claim the right to be absentminded. They live in a world of ideas and naturally are more or less oblivious of things of time and sense. Theodor Mommsen, the famous historian of Rome, had not only the appearance but the manner of a scholar. No man perhaps was ever more absentminded than he. He walked the streets of Berlin like some stranger from another world, not seeing his most familiar friends unless they stopped him by force and explained to him who they were. Once during the half hour's drive from Berlin to Charlottenburg the car in which the professor rode went badly off the track. The rest of the passengers alighted, the horses were removed, and the stranded can was left until help could be found. Mommsen remained, reading his book. An hour passed, and the sound of lovers and jacks and the plunging of horses' hoofs aroused him from his reverie.

With no sign of discomposure he rose from his seat and went to the door. "Ah." said he, "we seem to have come to a standstill!"—Youth's Companion.

BOB COOK AND THE BURGLAR - Returning home late one night Bob Cook, the ex-Yale oarsman, found his wife and servant girl breathless with alarm and praying for his arrival. They were sure they heard burglars up stairs, where the baby was asleep. In his usual fearless manner Mr. Cook went up to investigate. The women heard him moving around for a moment or two, and then all was still. The agony increased. Mrs. Cook was sure that the burglars had made away with her husband, and she was too overcome with terror to give the alarm. In vain she called upon the servant to call some one or go up stairs herself. For an hour they sat there trembling and growing gray, until at last, with the re-solve of desperation and shutting her eyes to what might be before her, Mrs Cook started up the stairs, taking the servant with her. Slowly they made their way through the upper hall to the family bed-chamber, and there they found Mr. Cook fast asleep in his bed. Having seen no burglar, he had forgotten to report back to his wife, but had quietly turned in for the night, all unappreciative of the terror of the women.—New York Advertiser. THEIR OWN OPINIONS .- There is no class of persons of whom one may say that "knowledge puffeth up" more truly, according to James Payn, than our classical scholars. There is something in the dead languages which causes those who make them their study to have, as the Scotch say, "A guid conceit of theirsels." Of Whewell it was said that "science was his forte and omniscience his foible." Professor Donaldson used modestly to admit that he knew nothing of botany, but the whole circle of the sciences was, with this exception, supposed to be at his fingers' "What I do not know," said Jowett (for, though somebody said it for him, it comes to the same thing), "is not knowledge," The last utterance of a well knowledge. The last utterance of a well known classical authority is said to be as follows: "Tennyson dead, Browning dead, Jowett dead. I feel almost alone."-Argonaut. Understood English Well Enough. A North Sider of a musical turn of mind was starting down town yesterday morning when the strains of a hand organ played by an Italian across the street reached his ear. He recognized the music as a popular aria from "Semiramide." The barmony was perfect, and the impresario at the crank was conducting the performance with excellent judgment as to tempo. Startled at hearing music of such a class from the much abused hand organ, the North Side citizen stopped and listened. The organist fluished the aria, made some changes in the interior adjustment of the machine and started it again. The selec-

When the music ceased, the listener crossed the street, took a coin from his pocket, gave it to the organ grinder and said: "Do you understand English?" "Yeh," replied the impresario, pocketing the coin and grinning delightedly.

"Then I want you to play that last piece the performance was equally good.

The organist grasped the handle of his machine, turned it with renewed vigor, and the suffering atmosphere for blocks around vibrated with the agonizing strains of "Aft

"You must be a very long lived family," said a gentleman, talking to a woman of 90 years, in an institution, who said that she had a brother and a sister still living, both older than herself. "Yes, sir," was the reply. "There was eight of us, sir, and my brother Jimmy was the only one who died young." "And how old was he?" "Only 70, sir."-Youth's Companion.
